

Caption Companies Can Now Be More Valuable To Their Clients

Ads on the View Page Tweets of Key Events of a Session

Captioning sessions for large audiences provide opportunities for captioning companies to provide their clients with added revenue streams and marketing opportunities. Clients such as Broadcast Stations, Convention Organizers, Concert Event Organizers, Universities, and other large group organizers, can all benefit by selling space on the captioning view page for advertisers.

Ads on the View Page:

1CapApp has added the ability to include sponsors' ads on the view page, giving your clients the opportunity to sell that space on the view page to third-party sponsors of the scheduled event.

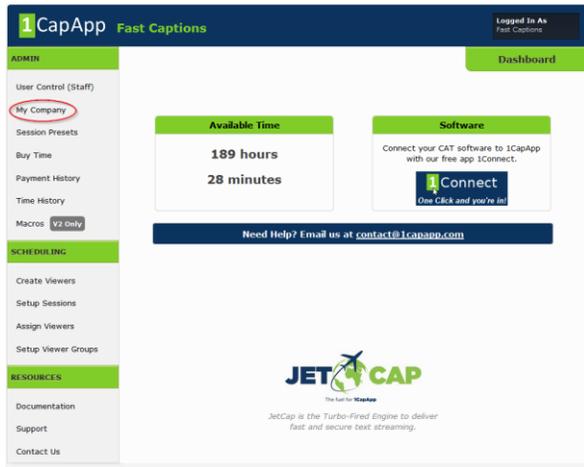

Twitter Links and Tweets of Key Events of a Session

1CapApp has given the writer the ability to create a macro that will send a tweet to a linked twitter home page of the event's special moments. For instance, the writer can tweet with a macro "Touchdown", "First Down", "Penalty" during captioning of a football game. The tweet would be posted on the broadcast station's twitter home page. The broadcast station can advertise: Details of the game can be followed on twitter. Follow us (the broadcast station) on Twitter.

Below is a summary of how to put ads on the view page and the steps to make it happen (details follow).

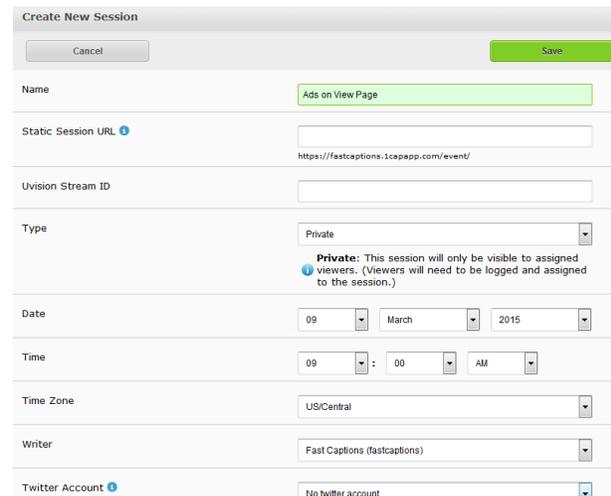

- Add icons for each ad in My Company setup section. You can add as many as you need.
- Setup Sessions (create) a session that will include the ads.
- In Customize Widgets there is a section called “Ads”.
- Expand Ads. Checkmark Active. Input a Title. Select your ads to be included in the session, up to three.

StreamBox

This is how ads would look on the view page of 1CapApp.
Captions would be displayed normally in the streaming text box.
The ads would show at the top as displayed above.
Customers viewing a session could click on the interactive ads and a new page would display showing the sponsors' offers or take the viewer to the sponsors' websites.
